News and Comment

DB/C DX 15.0 was successfully released last month. Several minor problems have already been identified and fixed in DB/C DX 15.0.1. We will continue to work on getting any new issues resolved before we embark on new development.

There is no article this month. Part of the reason for this is that there isn't much new happening in computer industry. Innovation is slowing, and the industry is starting to resemble traditional industries where change and advances happen slowly. This isn't quite as exciting as the last twenty years in our industry, but it makes for a more stable environment to maintain systems and strengthen existing customer relationships. We will continue to focus on those ideas.
